But while yet there is steel Rvery tyrant shall feel
That God's vengeance litt waits for its hero

Then give him; a sepulcher Rroad as the every of the tidal wave's measureless motion, In the arms of the deep Lay our Britis to sleep Since his life was as free as the ocean.

It may be argued that the President did not know of the existence of this poem when he appointed Terrell. This may be true, although the relection is in line with most of the appoint nents of this Administration, which seems to find delight in placing men who were rank enemies of the Union on the pay rell of the governmen they sought to des roy. But whatever the fact may be as to the previous knowledge of the Preident he knows all about is dastardly performance of Terrell now, and there can be no excuse for a failure to recall the appointment. If this man is permitted to retain his position it will be an insult to the Nation that should be rebuked by every loyal citizen

There is a wealth of sarcasm in the following reference to the Ohio campaign in, the New York Sun

The battle will turn on the tariff, as In 1391, when Major Mckinley had 21,500 majority, but while the Republican position is muchanged regarding that, the Democrats have taken advanced ground, and have it apparently well within their power to carry the state on the platform I lank constructed by Larry Neal and approved by the Democracy of the United states

The very fact that the Democrats are rowided with orders and the superinten lent reports that the factory will not shut lown

Despite all that the free trade papers searching the State with a fine-tooth comb to find a man to run against Gov McKin-ly, adds to the significance of this parathe rates columns contradict their editorial utterances.

The baltimore there an says The real russon for the present financial and undustral policy of the husueial and industrial policy of the Democratic party and it is rather early to be sending out congratulatory.

In other gowns the insertions are confined to the waist in cross rows for those who are long-waisted, and in lengthwise stripes for those with short waist. The skirt has then a gored flounce beginning at the knee and headed with a ruche of blue or black satia ribbon, which may also be repeated at the foot.

Dresses of inexpensive India silks or dark blue cottons, either batistes or organdy muslins, have a foundation skirt covered with three flounces, each bordered with the narrow white guipure insertion with straight edges, or else with one mitred or scalloped edge that gives a pretty finish.

In some blouse waists of such dresses two wider rows of insertion form the trimming, the lower row passing around directly under the armholes, while above this in front and back is another row crossing from armhole to numbole. The insertion may be introduced in the puffs at the upper part of the sleeves, but it is more usual to leave these of the plain blue fabric and have many horizontal insertions in the close lower aleves.

The prospects for much tennis playing in the city this year do not seem very bright. About the only place where any games have occurred is the High School court, and now that vacation has come it does not seem likely that the grounds will be used much. No move has been taken to put the Tennis Association's courts, on Chamberlain street, into condition for use and the interest in the pastime has apparently died out. A few years ago a large number of the young people were much interested in tennis and it was one of the favorite games. More may be heard of it leter in the season bowever.

Mew Notions in Meedlework.

The shops are full of an immense number of articles made of linen and ready for the embroiderer's needle. She will be hard to please indeed if she is unable to discover something that will suit her among the infinite variety of tea cloths, brush and comb satchets, doilles, sofa backs, slideboard slips, toilet and tray cluths. Among the more novel articles made of linen are wrappers for champagne bottles of two sizes, which near the base are traced with a somewhat indefinite pattern that somehow recalls the constant movement that goes on inside the bottles themselves. Then there are dollies for hot baked potstoes, scones and tea cakes. These are square in shape. The corners, being prettily embroidered, are turned to the favorite games. More may be easily or only effective and low-priced, the result is much the same, as the width of the farmework demands, is draped on and from the pole end forms sent of valance or lambrequin which hides ugly straight lines from view and yet leaves the passageway quite free. tottes of two sizes, which near the base are traced with a somewhat indefinite pattern that somehow recalls the constant movement that goes on inside the bottles themselves. Then there are dollies for hot baked potatoes, scones and tea cakes. These are square in shape. The corners, being prettily embroidered, are turned over toward the inside. Not being wadded, these coies may be considered as more for show than use.

The patterns as a whole are still conventional in style and are better suited to the capabilities of the average worker than those of a very naturalistic kind. The fancy for working these articles entirely with white is somewhat declining, and now the tendency is to follow the prevalent taste in dress and to use brilliantly colored silks and to shade the work rather elaborately. For issuance, in the corners of a white linen teacloth, the edges of which are hemstiched, is placed a large doral spray executed in shades of figure color and having leaves and stems in tones of thorac green, Filoselies are generally employed, and the surface of the design is closely covered with stitches, which in the pleces sold commenced are often as smooth as if a phace of satin had been appliqued to the linen. There is a great fancy just now for work that recalls lace in one form or another. The lace braid embroidery still "goes" well, and some very dainty net colliles, cushion covers and chair tiddes bid fair to become equally popular. OVERLOADED.

OHIUS NEW LAW To Jail for Stealing Three Chicken

[Special in Cincinnati Enquirer.]
Passing strange is the fate of David Blackburn, a convict at the penitentiary, who has just tested the constitutionality of the habitual criminal act in the hope of regaining freedom. A fact known to but very few is that the crime which led to a life sentence being passed upon Blackto a life sentence being passed upon Black-burg was the theft of three chickens. Prior to that offense, however, he had served two terms in the pen. In June, 1890, he was found gully for the third time and on this occasion he was sentenced for life under the habitual criminal act. His offense in the last case was a trivial one. He broke into an outhouse and stole three chickens and a basket in which to carry them away. The breaking into nal was based upon a claim that a man can only be punished for an offense under the laws of the State or nation; that the fact of a man having been twice convicted of penal offense does not in itself consti-tute a third separate and distinct offense.

and consequently could not be constitu-tionally punished under the law in ques-tion. The Supreme Court last Tuesday sustained the constitutionality of the act.

of the entire system follows the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's an invigorating, restorabracing nervine—and a certain remedy for all the functional de-rangements, painful disorders or chronic weaknesses peculiar to women. It improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep, and restores flesh and strength. For periodical pains, internal inflammation and ulceration, leucorrhea and kindred ailments, it is a positive specific-a guaranteed one. If it fails to give satisfaction, in any case, the mone paid for it is refunded. No other medicine for women is sold on these terms. With an ordinary medicine, it can't be done.

That's the way its makers prove their faith in it. Contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrup or sugar to derange digestion; a legitimate medicine, not a beverage. Purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in condition of the system. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors, No. 663 Main Street Buffalo, N. Y.
